

LIVE, LOVE, LEARN AND LEAVE A LEGACY

“Live, love, learn and leave a legacy” is the Miller family creed. You will find it engraved on frames, printed on stationery and most importantly, you will find it in my heart. You might call it my outline for life.

I have lived a wonderful life, surrounded by friends and family. I have loved, particularly my dear husband, Thad and my two incredible sons, Jack and Parker. I have learned that opportunities present themselves when you are not looking for them. All that was left was the legacy part. I have to admit that last part had me stumped, in the midst of raising kids. Then along came Arbonne.

It was not a “girl meets opportunity and falls in love at first sight” experience. Nope. When I was first approached about the business, I shelved the idea immediately. Not for me, thanks.

I had postponed my career as an interior designer to spend more time with my children. In my “spare time” I was running a personalized gift business with a friend; something we did seasonally and after the kids went to bed.

Yet, no matter how many times I pushed it aside, Arbonne kept presenting itself. My husband works with Sean Jones, husband of NVP Heather Jones. As I casually observed her Arbonne success it became more and more intriguing to me. Good for you, not for me, I still thought. Then I noticed the incredible difference she was making for her family.

Before my children were born, I was a pharmaceutical representative and making good money, earning my own way. And while I value my contribution as a wife and mother, something inside of me was stirring. Nagging questions lingered — what if something happened to Thad? Could I support my children? It was important for me to know that I could. Even more than that, I wanted my sons to know their mother was capable — and that all women are.

Even so, it still shocked me when I put my toe in the water. A self-confessed soap and water girl, I was not a product hound. I had only begun to read product labels after trips to the emergency room with my highly allergic son. Tempted by the botanically-based ingredients, I tried the products and then I cautiously used them on my kids. We saw results that were just as Arbonne described: Pure, safe and beneficial. To me, it cemented my involvement. Excellent products, plus a business plan that would potentially fulfill my needs ... it was the chance of a lifetime.

With belief in the product, trust in the company, and firsthand knowledge of success, I knew I could make Arbonne work for me and for my family. I could work smart, potentially making more money, with little time away from my family. Perfect, I thought.

For me, Arbonne has re-awakened feelings of workplace satisfaction: Meeting goals, both short- and long-term, managing a team and seeing results. And I would be remiss if I did not mention the absolute joy I feel in helping my teammates leave their own legacy.

Arbonne can change lives — for all of us who sell it, for our Clients who use it and for our families who benefit from it. I was resistant, but now I live it, love it and learn from it. And finally, with Arbonne, I can leave a legacy.

My thanks are many, as this has been anything but a solo journey.

To NVP Heather Jones: Thanks for never giving up. Your success enticed me and your tenacity sold me. Your quiet, confident approach, impeccable leadership and treasured friendship embody the spirit of Arbonne.

To AM Mary Susan Buhner, my dearest friend: I am elated that you are alongside me as we head for the top, laughing out loud and living it up, soul-sister! To AM Natasha Young: You are a consummate inspiration, a true friend and the lifeblood of our team. Your spirit, passion, conversations and pep rallies have made me a better teammate and person. To AM Jennifer Bales and the Martinsville team: You go, girls! Your activity, passion and success inspire me. There is nothing that you cannot do and I am honored to work with you. To AM Cammie Blackman and team: Thanks for coming on board and for being true to this opportunity! You deserve the best.

To AM Kirsten Hammersley and team: You are a shining star. I am so glad to know and learn from you. To AM Vilma Sevilla: Your knowledge and passion are contagious.

To my entire team: I am reminded daily that working alongside the talent, innovation and compassion you bring is a blessing. My sincere thanks for moving forward, working hard and for making sure that we aspire to be the difference!

To my mom and dad: Thank you for expecting the best, for supporting me, and most of all, for always knowing that I could do this. I love you both. To my sister, Kathy: Your pride and support mean everything. You are always 100 percent there for me. I love you. Thank you to my mother-in-law, Ann and my sister-in-law, Abigail, who both encouraged me and hosted my first Presentation. I could not do this without any of you.

To my dear husband, Thad and my precious sons, Jack and Parker: Thanks for your unending love and support. We make a great team! Thad, you believed in me long before I believed in myself. You cheer me on, pick up my slack, dream with me and remind me that I can do anything. I admire your selfless, tireless efforts as a husband, friend and father. Thank you for being the best thing in my life and for always encouraging me to be me. I love you.

To Jack and Parker: You are my reasons Why! Being your mom is the greatest gift. I am grateful that I get to put you first no matter what. I appreciate your sweet little spirits and loving hearts, cheering me on. I get to have it all as a stay-at-home mom with a life-changing career. I am truly blessed.

To Chairman and CEO Bob Henry, President Rita Davenport and the Arbonne Executive Team: Thank you for the incredible leadership. I am privileged to be a part of this organization!
